The Pension Plan requires certain personal information about plan members, their employment and their beneficiaries. For example, a pension Plan needs to know the birth dates of its members. The Plan must also track members' wages and their hours of work to ensure that all required contributions are made on their behalf. The Plan requires information about members' spouses, or beneficiaries, so benefits can be paid to the appropriate individual in the event of member's death. Most of this information is provided to the Plan by the member's employer. Other information is collected directly from members. On occasion, the Plan may need to share some of this information with actuaries and other pension professionals. The Plan will take all necessary steps to protect the privacy of this information. By participating in the Plan, you are consenting to the plan's collection, use and disclosure of this personal information.
